RESOURCES POLICY

Index to Volume 16

March, June, September, December 1990

Articles – titles

Arctic National Wildlife Refuge: how much oil can we expect? Stephen G. Powell. 16.3, 225–238

Climax molybdenum mine: death of a giant. Thomas D. Kaufmann. 16.4, 256–260

The discount rate and resource extraction: a simulation approach. Kenneth R. Stollery. 16.1, 47–55

Diversification or specialization: the role of risk. Gary A. Campbell. 16.4, 293–306

Embodied net exports, the effects on intensity of use estimation and mineral demand forecasting: US sulphur 1965–85. Khalid Al-Rawahi and Michael Rieber. 16.3, 200–209

From commodities to evolutionary materials: towards new forms of customer–supplier relationships. Olivier Bomsel and Philippe Roos. 16.2, 104–114

Gold price round the clock: technical and fundamental issues. Risto Laulajainen. 16.2, 143–152

The interest of OECD countries in ICAs and the Common Fund.Mehdi Shafaeddin. 16.4, 269–284

Japan's experience in linking foreign direct investment and imports of minerals. Kenji Takeuchi. 16.4, 307–312

Leapfrogging, consumer preferences, international trade and the intensity of metal use in less developed countries: the case of steel in Korea. Kee Hyung Hwang and John E. Tilton. 16.3, 210–224

Long-range metal consumption forecasts using innovative methods: the case of aluminium in Brazil to the year 2000. Saul B. Suslick and DeVerle P. Harris. 16.3, 184–199

Market efficiency, spot metals prices and cointegration: evidence for the US, 1964–1987. Jonathan D. Jones and Noel D. Uri. 16.4, 261–268

Material substitution in battery electrodes: the UK 1983–87. M.J. Holmes. 16.1, 22–34

Material substitution in the UK window industry, 1983–87. M.J. Holmes. 16.2, 128–142

Modelling Australian steel consumption: the intensity of use technique. Raymundo M. Valdes. 16.3, 172–183

Myopia, emmetropia or hypermetropia? Competitive markets and intertemporal efficiency in the utilization of exhaustible resources. Stephen P. Dresch. 16.2, 82–94

Oil pricing policies: short-run general equilibrium effects. Peter J. Higgs. 16.4, 285–292

Policy reform to expand mining investment in sub-Saharan Africa. Raj Kumar. 16.4, 242–255

Predicting metal consumption: the case of US steel. Mark C. Roberts. 16.1, 56–73

Prospects for China's iron ore imports, Lu Zhen. 16.2, 95–103

Securities of mineral supplies. R. Ian Harker and Timothy M. Lutz. 16.2, 115–127

Subsidy measurement problems in new mining projects. David L. Anderson. 16.3, 162–171

Towards an EEC minerals policy? David Humphreys. 16.1, 35–46

Uranium mining policy in Australia: one step forward and two steps backwards. Carlos M.R. Sorentino. 16.1, 3–21

Articles – authors

Al-Rawahi, Khalid and Michael Rieber. Embodied net exports, the effects on intensity of use estimation and mineral demand forecasting: US sulphur 1965–85. 16.3, 200–209

Anderson, David L. Subsidy measurement problems in new mining projects. 16.3, 162–171

Bomsel, Olivier and Philippe Roos. From commodities to evolutionary materials: towards new forms of customer–supplier relationships. 16.2, 104–114

Campbell, Gary A. Diversification or specialization: the role of risk. 16.4, 293–306

Dresch, Stephen P. Myopia, emmetropia or hypermetropia? Competitive markets and intertemporal efficiency in the utilization of exhaustible resources. 16.2, 82–94

Harker, R. Ian and Timothy M. Lutz. Securities of mineral supplies. 16.2, 115–127

Higgs, Peter J. Oil pricing policies: short-run general equilibrium effects. 16.4, 285–292

Holmes, M.J. Material substitution in battery electrodes: the UK 1983–87. 16.1, 22–34

Holmes, M.J. Material substitution in the UK window industry, 1983–87. 16.2, 128–142

Humphreys, David. Toward an EEC minerals policy? 16.1, 35–46

Hyung Hwang, Kee and John E. Tilton. Leapfrogging, consumer preferences, international trade and the intensity of metal use in less developed countries: the case of steel in Korea. 16.3, 210–224

Jones, Jonathon D. and Noel D Uri. Market efficiency, spot metals prices and cointegration: evidence for the US, 1964–1987. 16.4, 261–268

Kaufmann, Thomas D. Climax molybdenum mine: death of a giant. 16.4, 256–260

Kumar, Raj. Policy reform to expand mining investment in sub-Saharan Africa. 16.4, 242–255

Lutz, Timothy see Harker, R. Ian

Laulajainen, Risto. Gold price round the clock: technical and fundamental issues. 16.2, 143–152

Powell, Stephen G. Arctic National Wildlife Refuge: how much oil can we expect? 16.3, 225–238

Roberts, Mark C. Predicting metal consumption: the case of US steel. 16.1, 56–73

Roos, Philippe see Bomsel, Olivier

Shafaeddin, Mehdi. The interest of OECD countries in ICAs and the Common Fund. 16.4, 269–284

Sorentino, Carlos M.R. Uranium mining policy in Australia: one step forward and two steps backwards. 16.1, 3–21

Stollery, Kenneth R. The discount rate and resource extraction: a simulation approach, 16.1, 47–55

Suslick, Saul B. and DeVerle P. Harris. Long-range metal consumption forecasts using innovative methods: the case of aluminium in Brazil to the year 2000. 16.3, 184–199

Takeuchi, Kenji. Japan's experience in linking foreign direct investment and imports of minerals. 16.4, 307–312

Valdes, Raymundo M. Modelling Australian steel consumption: the intensity of use technique. 16.3, 172–183

Zhen, Lu. Prospects for China's iron ore imports. 16.2, 95–103

Conference report

18th Geochautauqua–Delaware, University of Delaware, 12–14 October 1989. John H. Schuenemeyer. 16.1, 79

Book reviews

Economic Theories of Exhaustible Resources by T.J.C. Robinson (reviewed by John E. Tilton). 16.1, 75–76

The Formulation of Time Preferences in a Multidisciplinary Perspective: Their Consequences for Individual Behaviour and Collective Decision-Making edited by Guy Kirsch, Peter Nijkamp and Klaus Zimmermann (reviewed by Adam Rose). 16.1, 77–78

Growth Patterns in Copper Consumption in Industrializing Countries by Marian Radetzki and Kenji Takeuchi (reviewed by David Humphreys). 16.2, 153–154

A Guide to Primary Commodities in the World Economy by Marian Radetzki (reviewed by Phillip Crowson). 16.4, 313–314

Jamaica in the World Aluminum Industry, 1938–1973 by Carlton E. Davis (reviewed by Thomas D. Kaufmann). 16.4, 315–316

Metals Demand and the Canadian Metal Industry: Structural Changes and Policy Implications by Carmine Nappi (reviewed by Mark C. Roberts). 16.1, 74–75

Minerals Processing in the Industrialization of ASEAN and Australia by Bruce McKern and Praipol Koomsup (reviewed by Charles J. Johnson). 16.3, 239

The New Geopolitics of Minerals: Canada and International Resource Trade edited by David G. Hagland (reviewed by John J. Schanz). 16.1, 76–77

Nonferrous Metal Prices in the United States through 1988 by US Bureau of Mines, Branch of Nonferrous Metals (reviewd by Roderick G. Eggert). 16.4, 314–315

A Study on the Legislative Framework, Agreements and Financial Impositions Affecting Mining and Petroleum Industries in Commonwealth African Countries by the Commonwealth Secretariat (reviewed by David N. Smith). 16.2, 155–156

Suitable Resource Use: An Enquiry into Modelling and Planning by H.J.M. de Vries (reviewed by Richard J. Brazee). 16.2 156–157

Uranium in Australia, 1979–1987: An Annotated Bibliography by C. O'Fairchealaigh, A. Webb and D. Wade-Marshall (reviewed by Carlos M.R. Sorentino and Donald W. Barnett). 16.2, 154–155